Dear Miss Whitney:

I called on Tuesday, when the civil youth who plies the elevator, broke it to me that you and Miss Manning had flown three days before. Whereupon I tore my hair. I had nothing to say, however, except that I love you passing well, and that things stand with me just where they did, touching my sojourn by Androscoggin. My Aunt and I are off, it would now appear, on the 18th. The address, - did I tell you? - is Five Islands, Sagadahoc Co., Maine. It is primitive, 'fishful', and fair to see. I expect to work, rather than to play, there, if only I can pull my wandering and once obedient wits together again. All luck to you both, all summer, and ever after! from

Yours faithfully,
L. J. Guiney.
